OVERVIEW OF UK HOUSING & PLANNING STATISTICS

The decentralised nature of the UK housing and planning system means that different organisations produce statistics about different aspects of housing. This overview of housing and planning statistics shows which areas of statistics are produced by government departments, devolved administrations and some arm's length bodies, as well those produced by the Office for National Statistics. For more detailed information about published housing and planning statistics see the Guide to UK Housing & Planning Statistics

For simplicity this overview separates housing topics into the broad themes of demand, supply and stock, although in reality some topics relate to multiple themes. We will continue to develop the overview and welcome your feedback on its content and presentation by emailing us at tony.wilkins@ons.gov.uk
