Transformation of population, migration
and social statistics

08 June 2023

What we will cover today

- Update on the consultation
- Next steps

Help Shape Our Future 2018 White Paper

“In 2023, ONS will present recommendations to government as to the future of census arrangements, in light of the progress that has been made. Consultation with, and the views of, end users and decision-makers will inform these recommendations in respect of how far the new system will be fit for purpose in meeting needs. The methodologies underpinning the new approach will also be quality assured by an expert external assurance panel*”

*Methodological Assurance Review Panel (MARP)

Proposed future population and migration statistics system

More frequent, timely and inclusive statistics about the population and its characteristics

A social statistics system that shapes our understanding of society and people

A system to create and share statistics that is sustainable and future proof

A broad, flexible range of outputs and products to respond to user needs and questions of the day

Administrative data will be at the core of this system

Consultation objective

- To understand how close our proposed system is to meeting user's needs
- To understand the future requirements of users to inform and prioritise our research plans

Consultation launch events

- To discuss the consultation, we are holding a series of free events:

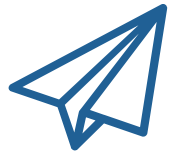

- National Statistician's launch event, Cardiff, 6 July 2023 15:00-17:00. Online attendance also available.

- Register here: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/ystadegau-poblogaeth-a-mudo-syg-ons-population-and-migration-statistics-tickets-639193072687>

- We are also running a London launch event on Tuesday 4 July, as well as shorter webinars on Tuesday 11, Wednesday 12 and Thursday 13 July 2023 on this topic.
