

Royal Welsh Show 2023

Minister for Rural Affairs

Call in at National Federation of Women's Institutes
Not in my Name campaign launch 2023

Day and Date:	Tuesday 25 July
Time:	Information redacted FOIA s38 – Health and Safety information
Location:	FUW pavilion
Audience:	NFWI members and the public
WG Official in attendance:	Richard Irvine, Chief Vet
Contact:	Information redacted FOIA s40(2) – personal information, Public Affairs Officer, National Federation of Women's Institutes - Wales Tel: Information redacted FOIA s40(2) – personal information

What is expected of the Minister?

Minister has agreed to call in at the event for 15 minutes to talk to NFWI reps and have a photo.

Note: Joyce Watson MS is jointly hosting the event with NFWI, supported by FUW. The event will run from Information redacted FOIA s38 – Health and Safety information and will include short contributions from:

- Information redacted FOIA s40(2) – personal information, NFWI-Wales Chair
- Joyce Watson MS
- Information redacted FOIA s40(2) – personal information, domestic abuse survivor
- Information redacted FOIA s40(2) – personal information, domestic abuse survivor
- Information redacted FOIA s40(2) – personal information, Manager of the Live Fear Free Helpline
- Ian Rickman, President of the FUW and
- Dafydd Llywelyn, Dyfed-Powys Police and Crime Commissioner

Followed by a short discussion with refreshments served.

Briefing

Refer to Hot Issues A – Z.

About Not In My Name

Established in 2012, Not in my Name raises awareness about VAWG. WIs recruit male ambassadors to make the White Ribbon promise to never use, excuse or remain silent about men's violence against women. Globally, 1 in 3 women experience physical or sexual violence. In a third of all UK female adult homicide, the suspect was the victim's partner or ex-partner (source: ONS). Ending violence against women is everyone's business and requires a whole society approach.

The event is an opportunity to learn about the impact of abuse and harassment on survivors and communities, and reaching out to the heart of rural communities to help tackle misogyny and harmful behaviours.