Between 11 and 16 children will attend secondary or high school. At the end of secondary school, children will sit GCSE exams. There is a lot of support available in Welsh schools. These include support for newly arrived children who are learning English or Welsh as a second language. School-based counsellors are available to help children who may be upset, worried or confused. Free breakfast and lunch options are often available in schools. If you live far enough away from school, free school transport may be provided. Children are able to leave school at age 16 but Further Education is strongly encouraged. There are a range of options for Further Education study. These include college and apprenticeships. Often enrolling at University will involve previous study at a college.\u003C\/p\u003E\u003Cp\u003EYou must be prepared to travel to take your children to school if there is no space in the schools in your local area. Children at primary school get free home to school transport if they live 2 miles or more from the nearest suitable school. Children at secondary school get free transport if they live 3 miles or more from the nearest suitable school. The local authority decides what is the nearest suitable school based on the child's age, ability and availability of school places.

Education in Wales may be delivered through English or Welsh language and there are both English and Welsh language schools in Wales. It is a criminal offence to keep your children away from school for no reason. In the United Kingdom you have a legal duty to ensure that your children attend school up to the age of 16.

The Welsh Government also funds English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) courses. These are set up to help adult refugees and asylum seekers to learn English.

Ca href="https://gov.wales/english-speakers-other-languages-esol-policy-statement">https://gov.wales/english-speakers-other-languages-esol-policy-statement

These courses are often free and can be delivered in many areas across Wales.

Many refugees and asylum seekers may have never heard the Welsh language before arriving.

Ca href="https://cymraeg.gov.wales/business/workplace/manteision/?lang=en">https://cymraeg.gov.wales/business/workplace/manteision/?lang=en

Learning Welsh can provide job opportunities in the future.

Many public services must be delivered in the Welsh language.

The Welsh Government funds optional support for your child's early years.

When a child reaches their third birthday they are eligible for free part-time nursery care. The Flying Start service offers childcare, health support, parenting support and language support.

Services Available Regardless of Immigration Status

GP and nurse consultations in primary care, treatment provided by a GP and other primary care services are free of charge to all. This is whether registering with a GP as an NHS patient or accessing NHS services as a temporary patient. A temporary patient is someone who is in the area for more than 24 hours and less than 3 months.

For secondary care services, the UK's healthcare system is residence-based. This means that you must be living legally in the UK on a settled basis to receive free healthcare.

Accident and emergency services, such as those provided at an A&E department, are exempt from charging. If you are admitted as an inpatient, or require a follow-up outpatient appointment, you may need to pay.

The UK Government decides who is allowed to work in Wales. Before you can work you will need to have been given the right to work and be given a National Insurance Number.

If you do not have a visa or status under the EU Settlement Scheme, or you entered the UK as a tourist, you will not have the right to work in the UK.

It is important to ensure you have the correct permission to live and work in the UK. If you do not have the correct entitlements, controls exist to limit your access to work, accommodation and public services.

If you do not have the right to work in the UK, you should still have the right to volunteer with a charity, a Council or other government department. You can find out Ca href=https://volunteering-wales.net/vk/volunteers/index.htm

Finding a job will not only increase your income but will help you settle into your new life.

Getting a job

To get help to find a job, you can:

- Look in local and national newspapers or recruitment websites where jobs are advertised
- Register with a recruitment agency who can find job vacancies for you
- Visit local companies to enquire about job vacancies
- Applying for a job

Once you have identified a job you want to apply for, applications are usually made through an application form, or a CV (curriculum vitae - a formal list of your qualifications and experience) and a covering letter.

You can get careers advice and support from the Ca href=https://careerswales.gov.wales/

Careers Wales

At Careers Wales they can help you to plan your career, prepare to get a job, and find and apply for the right apprenticeships, courses and training. You can also access employment support from <https://workingwales.gov.wales/>. Working Wales will support you through these changing times with free advice, guidance and access to training to help you get into work or further your career. Employers may also ask to see your documentation. From 1st July 2021 employers will ask to see your digital status to show evidence of your right to work in the UK. College diplomas and any other proof of your qualifications and experience will be helpful to show to employers. Employers may also ask for references from people who can verify your suitability for employment (such as a former manager, teacher or colleague).

Your rights and protection at work

When you go to work, you have the right to be treated fairly and work in a safe environment. You also have the right to be able to work without fear or harassment from your employer, colleagues or customers. Every employer in the country must pay their employees a minimum amount per hour. How much this is, depends on how old you are. Please check <http://www.gov.uk/nationalminimum-wage-rates> for the most up-to-date information. The terms and conditions of your work will be outlined in your contract. Make sure you read this carefully, with an interpreter if necessary, before you sign. You can get further advice about your rights and Employer's responsibilities by contacting ACAS on 0300 123 1100. Equality and discrimination in the workplace

Organisations and businesses have a legal duty to treat everyone fairly in the workplace and in the way they recruit people for jobs. It is illegal to discriminate against anyone applying for a job or in the workplace on the basis of sex and gender reassignment, race, religion, being married or in a civil partnership, disability, age, sexual orientation or if they are pregnant. Employers must therefore respect the needs of an employee as long as it does not interfere with the work they are employed to do. If you think you have been unfairly discriminated against you can get further advice and support from the Equality Advisory Service:

If you are being forced to work or your employer isn't willing to respect your rights, you can also get advice from the Modern Slavery Helpline by calling 0800 0121 700. If you cannot find a job, you may need to apply for social security support (also known as welfare benefits). Visit the Money section of this website for more information.

You should also consider if you are entitled to receive Universal Credit. If so, you may get help with all or part of your rent.
If you are renting from a private landlord, you may receive up to the Local Housing Allowance rate for your area to cover or help with the cost of rent. You can check the <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/understanding-local-housing-allowances-rates-broad-rental-market-areas> Local Housing Allowance rates to see if you can afford to live in the area you want.

You should also look at this advice about

<https://www.moneyhelper.org.uk/en/benefits/benefits-to-help-with-housing-costs/universal-credit-and-paying-rent?source=mas> managing rent payments on Universal Credit.

You can find more information and support at <https://www.citizensadvice.org.uk/wales/> Citizens Advice Cymru by ringing 0800 702 2020 (9am to 5pm, Monday to Friday). You will be able to access information and/or speak with an adviser online.

If I move into private accommodation will all the costs be covered by Universal Credit?

Your Universal Credit entitlement is based on your personal circumstances. These websites can help you check your eligibility and entitlement:

<https://www.entitledto.co.uk/> Benefits

Calculator
<https://www.gov.uk/check-benefits-financial-support> Check the benefits and financial support you can get.

If you are entitled to support from Universal Credit the amount you receive for housing costs relates to:

The cost of your rent,

and
The Local Housing Allowance in that area.

It may be that part, or all your rent is covered by this. Please note that Local Housing Allowance differs across Wales. Here you can <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/understanding-local-housing-allowances-rates-broad-rental-market-areas> check the amount for any area.

As well as the cost of rent, you will also be responsible for other household bills such as utilities. If you are eligible for Universal Credit, you can use your Universal Credit payments to meet part or all of these costs, depending on your personal circumstances.

When looking to rent it is important to think about <https://www.moneyhelper.org.uk/en/homes/renting/how-much-rent-can-you-afford?source=mas> how much rent you can afford to pay: 35% of your take-home pay is generally the most that many people can afford. This depends on what your other outgoings are (for example, whether you have children).

If you are of pension-age or living in certain types of accommodation, such as a hostel, you might be able to claim Housing Benefit for help with your rent.

Will my Universal Credit be stopped if I have to leave my employment because I have to move to a different area for more permanent accommodation?

It is very important that you tell Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) as soon as you start discussing a move to more permanent accommodation. You can do this either via your Work Coach or by keeping your client journal up to date, to avoid any sanctions.

This will allow your work coach to understand your personal circumstances and assess your ongoing Universal Credit entitlement. It will also enable them to work with teams in your new location to help ensure support is in place to find alternative employment when you arrive.

The Welsh Government works closely with the Department of Work and Pensions so they understand that people may need to move to different areas in Wales. We are working to ensure where possible this does not interrupt your Universal Credit claim.

If you move address, and you are in receipt of any benefits (disability, working age, retirement) you must <https://www.gov.uk/report-benefits-change-circumstances> tell the Department of Work and Pensions your new address so that they can stay in contact with you.

If you are already at a location such as a Welcome Centre where the Department of Work and Pensions is present, tell them your new address and they will help support you in reporting this change.

If I start work will my Universal Credit entitlement end?

Universal credit is flexible and can adapt as your circumstances change. If you start work, you will need to notify the Department of Work and Pensions of this change of circumstances. They will then re-calculate your entitlement based on your new income.

It is possible that you may still be entitled to some Universal Credit while you are working. This will be based on your personal circumstances and is calculated on a case-by-case basis. You can use the following online calculators to see how much better off you might be in work and what the impact of any earnings will be on your benefit entitlement <https://www.entitledto.co.uk/>

Can I choose the location of my move on accommodation?

You will be able to say which location you prefer, and this will be taken into consideration. However, we will not always be able to provide accommodation in your preferred location, you could be moved to anywhere in Wales. This is the same approach and expectations that we have for everyone in Wales who needs housing. If I have found employment, am I able to stay nearby?

Whilst we encourage you to seek work, we cannot guarantee that your move on placement will be in a location that enables you to continue your current employment. This will be taken into account during the matching process but we will not always be able to provide accommodation that is in a particular area, or a certain distance from your employment. Again, this is the same approach we take for everyone in Wales who needs housing. My child is registered in a local school, am I able to stay nearby?

We are unable to guarantee that your move on placement will be in a location that enables your child(ren) to remain in their current school. We will support you to register your child(ren) in a school at your new location. Can you provide any assistance for me to move to England?

If you want to move to another area of the UK, make sure that you tell your local authority before you move.

They will then contact the local authority in the new area. The new Local Authority will make any necessary checks and can confirm your new living arrangements are safe and suitable. If you have a child aged between 4 and 16 it is important to consider the availability of school places in the area that you are considering moving to. Full guidance is available in <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/welcome-a-guide-for-ukrainians-arriving-in-the-uk/welcome-a-guide-for-ukrainians-arriving-in-the-uk#annex-a-applying-for-a-school-place-in-england> Annex A of the Guide for Ukrainians arriving in the UK.

Are there restrictions on the number of bedrooms move on accommodation must have?

Whilst it is possible for you to move into accommodation that does not have one bedroom per person, you must consider if there is enough living space for you and/or your family. Move on accommodation will be long term. It is important that your new home is safe for you and your family. If a rented home is so crowded that it is dangerous then the local authority might say that it is not suitable for a family to live in it. For example, a house of 3 or more bedrooms might be suitable for a family of 5 (depending on factors such as the age of the children, the layout of the property and bedroom sizes). If the house had fewer than 3 bedrooms, it might not be safe for the family.

Whilst you are in initial accommodation, your local authority can explain to you what size of property is appropriate for you and your family.

If I look to rent my own accommodation how long will I have to commit to as I am keen to return to Ukraine as soon as I can?

Landlords will usually ask you to sign a contract for a fixed term period of 6 or 12 months. They will expect you to pay your rent each month for the duration of the contract.

If you are keen to have more flexibility, then moving into host accommodation might be a better option for you. Your Local Authority can help you find a suitable host offer.

Host Accommodation

If I move to a host, can I still receive support to access longer term private accommodation once that placement ends?

Yes, moving to a host sponsor will not end your support. Once the host placement is nearing the agreed term your local authority will work with you to help consider the most appropriate option for you in terms of move on accommodation, that includes support and financial assistance to secure private accommodation.\u003C\/p\u003E\n\n\u003Cp\u003E\u0026nbsp;\u003C\/p\u003E\n\n\u003Cp\u003E\u0026nbsp;\u003C\/p\u003E"

If the accommodation offer is a host offer, then the appropriate DBS and property checks should have been completed.

If I have a large family, will we stay together?

Sometimes it is not possible to find affordable accommodation large enough for big families. You may need to be accommodated across 2 separate properties. We will talk to you about this. We will think about the ages of family members, any caring or vulnerability needs and your personal preferences of the family. Properties offered will be close to each other.

I want to accept the offer of accommodation that has been made to me. What do I need to do?

You will receive an offer letter by email, this will tell you about the accommodation and the area where it is. Talk to your support worker about the offer

and

reply to the email withing 5 working days.

If you don't reply, they will think you are refusing the offer.

How do I refuse the offer of accommodation?

Before declining an offer of accommodation, you should discuss with local authority staff. You will need to reply to the email offer and provide the reasons why you are declining the offer, so that the local authority can consider your reasons.

I think I have a good reason for refusing the offer, does this still count towards the 2 offers that I have?

Good reasons could include:

where the accommodation is later deemed not to be an appropriate accommodation offer, as set out above. For example, because of specific needs for education, health, faith, and employment. And also for family links in settled accommodation.

where the family / individual has specific needs. For example, they need to be in a different area to access specialist medical or education support. And that this support is not available in, or within, a reasonable travelling distance to the offer area.

where a member of the family has care or support needs that are being met by family members accommodated in a different area.

where there is a short-term barrier to the family moving. For example, a medical procedure, and the accommodation offer cannot wait for that to be completed.

If you believe you have a good reason for refusing an offer of accommodation, speak to support staff from your local authority. They will explain what happens next.

If you don't think the accommodation you are being offered is appropriate for you, you can appeal their decision. You can ask them in writing to review their decision. Tell them your reasons. They have up to 56 days to respond to you.

Can I refuse an offer of accommodation to wait for a different one?

Our main aim is to help you secure suitable move on accommodation. It is not a good idea to say no to properties that you are offered, which are appropriate. If you say no to 2 properties, you will have to pay the weekly charge.

If I privately rent a property from a landlord, can they come to my house at any time and make me leave?

No, you can't be asked to leave without any warning. There are rules about this.

If they want you to leave they have to tell you in advance.

If I want to rent privately, will my local authority help me with the costs?

Some local authorities may help with deposits and upfront costs. Talk to your support worker about this. But remember that you will need to pay for the rent, council tax and cost of electricity, gas or water. You need to pay for these costs using your money or Universal Credit benefits.

Can I still find privately rented accommodation if I don't have a guarantor?

Many letting agents and landlords ask for a guarantor. But there are still many properties available without needing a guarantor. It is still possible to privately rent in Wales without a guarantor. Some local authorities can help and may be able to act as guarantor on your behalf. You should seek help from your local authority to see if this is available in your area.

Can I stay in Initial Accommodation until I am offered social housing?

Initial accommodation is not a long-term housing solution. Some local authorities may be able to offer you social housing (sometimes referred to as authority housing). This is likely to be only in specific circumstances and most local authorities are likely to offer you a privately rented property. You are unlikely to be matched to social housing because there are many households in Wales already on the waiting list. You may have to wait several years to be allocated to a local authority property. Because of this, it is not possible to wait in initial accommodation until you are offered social housing. You are likely to be offered other accommodation instead, such as a hosting arrangement or through the Private Rental Sector.

Do rent increases only impact private rented accommodation and not social housing?

Rent can increase for both social housing (sometimes called council housing) and for privately rented properties. However, the landlord must follow the correct legal procedure before putting up your rent. If you are in accommodation and the landlord approaches you with a rent increase, you can seek support from Citizens Advice Bureau.

The rent on a property is set by a local authority and normally increases every year. Rent increases for a privately rented property will depend on the type of tenancy you have. Your tenancy agreement should contain further information on this.

Can I take a smaller property to save money?

You and your family cannot live in a home which is so small that it's not safe. When you are matched to a property, a local authority considers what size of property is needed to ensure it is safe.

It is important that your home is safe for you and your family. It must have no serious risks to your health. This includes where there are too many people for the size of the home or for its facilities, like its kitchen or bathroom. If a rented home is so crowded that it is dangerous, then the local authority might say that it is not suitable for a family to live in it. For example, a house of 3 or more bedrooms might be suitable for a family of 5. This depends on factors such as the age of the children, the layout of the property and bedroom sizes. If the house had fewer than 3 bedrooms, it might not be safe for the family. As part of the support you receive whilst in initial accommodation, your local authority, or their support provider, should provide you with important information about housing. This includes information about suitable property sizes based on your family size and make-up. If I dislike the property I move to, can I return to the initial accommodation or hosting? No.

You will not be allowed to return to initial accommodation once you have left it. But, if after moving into a property, you think that the property is unsuitable for your needs, you should discuss this with the local authority. They can suggest whether they can help, or whether you would need to remedy the issue independently. Can I present to the local authority for homelessness assistance instead? If the local authority accepts you are unintentionally homeless (that you didn't make yourself homeless on purpose), and that they have a responsibility to help you, they will look for a suitable property for you. It may not be in the same area you're currently in. When the local authority considers if they have a responsibility to assist you through homelessness, they will assess any refusals of accommodation and properties you have had previously when making their decision. If you have refused appropriate offers of accommodation before, the local authority may decide that you are intentionally homeless. You will then not be assessed as eligible for assistance. Homelessness assistance through the local authority also provides forms of temporary accommodation. These are similar to the initial accommodation that you might have been in. But you will not have a permanent tenancy agreement. And you will not be able to stay in this type of accommodation any longer than you would be able to stay in initial accommodation. If you are accepted for homelessness assistance, the local authority will still give you offers of accommodation. They will still expect you to move on. The offers of accommodation made this way can be privately rented, social housing, or hosting arrangements. These are the same as the offers made through initial accommodation. Unlike initial accommodation there is a charge for temporary accommodation that you would be liable for. If I apply as homeless to a local authority where I want to live, will the local authority find me a home in that area? If you apply as homeless to a local authority, the local authority will consider your application and might try to help you to find somewhere to live. The local authority might find you somewhere to live in the local area or in other areas in Wales. As a homeless individual or family, you are likely to have a long wait in temporary accommodation whilst waiting for longer term housing. Especially if you have applied to a local authority which has a lot of people waiting for housing in the area. Local authorities use various types of property as temporary accommodation. These include rooms or properties rented from private landlords, as well as bed and breakfasts. If I have employment, will I only be made offers of accommodation locally? Being in employment isn't considered a good reason to refuse an offer of accommodation. When deciding if an offer is appropriate for you, the local authority will consider the nature of your employment. For example, whether they think that the travel distance between the accommodation being offered and your employment is reasonable. Or whether you would be able to get a similar job in another area such as hospitality or factory work. It is more likely that a local authority will consider your employment where it is a specialist role or adaptations have been made. Are offers of accommodation located in the area in which my child/ children are enrolled in school? If there is no accommodation available in the area that your child or children attend school, they may need to move to another school. There are exceptions for specific circumstances, for example special educational needs. Accommodation will be sought within a reasonable distance of age-appropriate education facilities.

Do offers of accommodation consider my medical needs? The local authority will take into consideration any known medical treatment requirements. Offers of accommodation will be within a reasonable distance for medical treatment or ongoing care. However, the local authority will try to accommodate your household as close to that provision as possible. For more complex, specialist treatment, this may need significant travel out of the area.

Is the cost of rent the same everywhere? The average monthly rent of a privately rented accommodation varies across Wales, depending on the location. When looking to rent it is important to think about how much rent <https://www.moneyhelper.org.uk/en/homes/renting/how-much-rent-can-you-afford?source=mas> you can afford to pay. 35% of your take-home pay is generally the most that many people can afford. But this depends on what your other outgoings are (for example, whether you have children).

You should also consider if you are entitled to Housing Benefit or Universal Credit. If so, you may get help with all or part of your rent. If you are renting from a private landlord, you may receive up to the Local Housing Allowance (LHA) rate for your area to cover or help with the cost of rent.

Check with this

You can find more information and support at the

Is it possible to sign up to a tenancy agreement, do I have to stay until the end even if I want to go back to Ukraine? A tenancy agreement is a legal agreement that sets out how long you have rented accommodation for, the minimum period is usually 6 or 12 months.

You have a right to occupy the accommodation during this time, and you have a legal liability to pay the agreed rent. If you need to leave your tenancy agreement early, you can ask your landlord or letting agent for their permission to break the contract.\u003C\p\u003E\n\n\u003Cp\u003EThey may charge you a fee in order to allow you to leave the contract, and legally they can say no and enforce the full contract length.\u003C\p\u003E\n\n\u003Cp\u003E\u0026nbsp;\u003C\p\u003E\n\n\u003Cp\u003ESupport is available from your local authority.
